I want to make a .Net application for client work. Clients will make some changes in that application and their changes will be stored in a database. I want to know that what should I use to store the client changes. Which is better: Database (for storing data) Configuration Session A: This is a very broad question. Database will keep the data separately and not allow concurrent work/changes by multiple clients. Configurations allow you to store different kind of information like credentials, logins, etc. without having to replicate the same information across projects. Session is a new concept, and I am not sure it will work in your scenario. I would suggest that these are better: Application settings Web.config You may create a custom configuration directory, and on app start, create a session file Local Settings/Application Data An adduct based on aflatoxin and a chlorinated cyclodextrin. A new binary aflatoxin-CD (af-CD) inclusion complex was prepared by using a semi-preparative HPLC procedure and characterized by X-ray powder diffraction, Fourier transform infrared spectroscopy, differential scanning calorimetry and thermal gravimetric analysis. The ability of the inclusion complex to eliminate reactive metabolites (AF-1 and AF-2) released from aflatoxin B(1) (AFB(1)) was examined in adult male rats, using a rat model which mimics the human metabolic process of AFB(1). The covalent binding of aflatoxin B(1) was measured through the formation of DNA adducts (CS-AFB(1)) excreted in urine. AF-CD showed similar or higher binding of AFB(1) and AFB(1)-DNA adducts compared to native CD, particularly in the case of AF-1 and AF-2 detoxification. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a pattern forming method using a resist composition, and particularly to a pattern forming method preferably applied to formation of a semiconductor device and a circuit board (e.g., a circuit board for a liquid crystal display device, a substrate for a magnetic head
