Some of the most common programs are adwarebytes and spyhunter. These programs are available for free and have a good reputation. On the other hand, you probably shouldn't attempt to remove spyware manually. As mentioned, they have bad reputation and are a bad choice. If you do the process manually, you are likely to compromise the computer. If the computer is not scanned correctly, then the danger will be even greater. Instead of removing the program manually, you might try using some of the tools mentioned above. However, in the case of the tool Spyhunter, you might get a message saying that it was not able to remove the program. If this happens, then you should disable all of the other available spyware removal tools. In this case, you would have to use the following steps in order to remove the program manually: Click Start and type "taskmgr" in the search box. Click on the system process that is called "spyhunter.exe". Right click on the program and click on End process. Type "notepad" in the search bar and click on it. Open the process list and find the "spyhunter.exe" process. Right click on the process and select "End process". In order to prevent spyware from showing up again, you should use the following: Go to Start -> Settings -> Control Panel -> Add or remove programs and
