2. Click the Create a New Layer icon in the bottom-left corner to launch the Create a New Layer dialog box. From the Layers panel, choose the New Layer from the Create dialog box and select Create a new layer for the new material (as shown in Figure 6-1). When you press the OK button, a new layer is created in your image. Notice that the default name is "New Layer." If you prefer a different name, enter it in the Name text box. 3. Double-click the New Layer icon at the top-right corner to launch the Layer dialog box, which is shown in Figure 6-2. This dialog box enables you to name and organize your new layer. I'll discuss the keyboard shortcuts for moving around the dialog box in the next few paragraphs. You can use this dialog box to navigate to any of the New Layer dialog boxes that are the same as this one and go back to the Create New Layer dialog box when finished. However, this also provides an easy way to get back to your original canvas if you accidentally change your original image. You can do this by pressing Enter on the keyboard. 4. Enter a new layer name in the Name text box. 5. By default, the layer is selected, which means that its layer mode is selected. When you do not want the layer selected, deselect it by pressing the D key on the keyboard. 6. Drag the New Layer icon to the right to add the new layer to the Layers panel, as shown in Figure 6-3. You can drag the icon left to remove a layer. You can also drag the New Layer box around the canvas, as shown in the top image in Figure 6-4, to move it to the desired location. By default, the layer is stored on the document canvas. 7. Deselect the current New Layer icon by pressing the D key on the keyboard. This deselects the layer and enables you to move it to a new location. Click the leftmost tile in the New Layer dialog box to return to the Create New Layer dialog box. 8. By default, the layer is in Normal mode, which means that it shows up as a solid color and you can see through it and everything underneath it. However, your new layer is currently selected. To deactivate this selection, click the "eye" icon at the lower-left corner of the Layers panel to des

J. Edward Russell Johnson Edward Russell (November 30, 1858 – January 7, 1933) was an American polo player. Biography Russell was born on November 30, 1858, at this home in Forks Township, Washington County, Pennsylvania. He was the son of John Russell and Lillian "Della" Richards. He married Ellen Haldane (1857–1933), daughter of James Gordon Haldane of Baltimore, and they had two children, Lillian and Samuel William. He was an officer in the U.S. Cavalry and took part in the Great Sioux War of 1876. He was commissioned a captain in 1884, and after that he was stationed in Texas, Nebraska, Colorado, and Colorado Springs, Colo. After retiring from the Army, he moved to Rome, Italy, where he died on January 7, 1933. Polo He was at the center of a rousing political controversy over the sport, often called the "millionaire's game," and other champions of American sport have urged him to be acknowledged for his contributions to the sport. In 1905, he won the Indiana Grand Prix, defeating his American contemporaries Charles Butler and Joseph S. Fowler Jr. at the Indiana Derby at the race track at Brookville, Ind. The race was organized as a replacement for the St. Louis Stewardship Derby, which was canceled in 1900 because of the crash of the St. Louis Exposition train. As a result of that crash, the St. Louis Stewardship Derby was reduced to only a single $5,000 race. It was called the St. Louis Stewardship instead of the renamed Indiana Grand, in reference to his home state. His wife Ellen was his partner for his 1905 victory. In the 1955 film "About Faces" starring Tom Ewell and a young Jack Lemmon, there is a mention of the 1905 Indiana Grand Prix and the birth of polo as a "civilized game." He was chairman of the U.S. Polo Association from 1915 to 1919. He co-founded the American Polo Association in 1921, the Amateur Polo Association in 1927, and the British Open Polo Association in 1929. He attended the international polo games in Uruguay in 1922, 1926, 1927, and 1929.
